I am giving away my old dell laptop away because it has a small scratch on the bottom of the screen. I just won a new one so I really don't have a use for this one anymore. With postage and everything, it just isn't worth putting on olx, Craigslist or junk-mail. And I just got on for free anyway. It still works fine. It just has a small scratch on the bottom of the screen. I am not going to send it out, if you want it you will have to come and pick it up. But, it is a free laptop so it's worth it right? I still have the box it came in and the charger you need so you can have those too. However, I cannot find the installation CD but the installed window is working fine.
 This is first come first serve so get in touch soon as it will probably not last.
